

As I was saying, Andrew gave me some details about SR's future, saying they were going back to Ohio in a few weeks to record again. He told me he rewrote "Anymore" in its entirety so it was an actual full length song now; the only thing left unchanged from the old version was the opening guitar riff. I couldn't ~~wait~~ wait to hear how different the song was gonna sound. To put it lightly the old original version was really shitty, but that riff was awesome, so I'm really glad that stayed.

Anyways, he told me he demo'd it at home and "it just sounds badass". He also told me about "My Last Confession" and some info on mixing and recording it for "make your move." ~~etcetera~~ (the alternate solo version and such)

But yeah he was VERY open which surprised me, even just rambling about anything SR for like 10 mins; it was great, and I sat on my phone 📱

But then came the talk that would be the down fall of our relationship, the music video discussion, I thought that I was an automatic lock for the "Anymore" music video but I was wrong.